The drink question is now prominent in the British Isles than the European hostilities.

No person may establish a wireless telegraph station in the British Isles or on board a British ship in home waters, except under a license granted by the postmaster general.

The temperance meeting at the Oldfellow's hall on Friday night was poorly attended. While Mr. Peck is a good speaker, it cannot be said that his lectures are productive of results in the interest of the prohibition campaign. They fail to reach the desired mark, and are generally delivered upon the total abstinence which know practically nothing of the drink traffic, and whose influence, if they have any, has little or no effect upon the ordinary drinker.

Whatever success may attain the efforts of the prohibitionists, we fail to see how anything can be accomplished through the medium of lectures, which contain too much of the "old, old story" that has been out and dried for years and which only arouse the anger to disgust.
An effort should also be made to display pictures of actual conditions rather than cartoons of conditions that could not possibly exist.

The second and third degrees will be conferred at the regular meeting of Blairmore Lodge 68, I.O.O.F., on Tuesday night next.

Arbor Day in Canada

In Canadian schools it has been the custom for years to observe Arbor Day in a greater or less degree. This custom should receive increased attention from educational bodies and the general public, for the country has a great need for the planting of more trees and shrubs, both in school and residential grounds.
Canada is so dependent upon her forests that any measures which may be taken to extend the knowledge of the pupils respecting trees and the need for their protection will serve a useful purpose.

In each of the provinces, with the exception of British Columbia, provision is made for the celebration of Arbor Day.
In most provinces it is a public school celebration only, the regulations requiring its observance by the planting of trees and shrubs in school grounds. This should be made a public holiday, instead of being confined to the school grounds.
The scope of its observance should include the annual clean-up, particularly as it is usually celebrated early in May. In this way, more general interest would be aroused in the work, and greater results secured, from an arboral as well as an artistic and sanitary standpoint.

Don't wait for the sanitary inspector to give you notice to clean up your back yard and burn the rubbish, but do your duty before the inspector comes. The rubbish during the winter should be removed so the spring rains can wash away what has not been gathered up. See to it at once and make the work for the inspector pleasant and easy.

An exchange says—blinded to the plain obvious fact in our economic life, France has been stumbling along, trying to solve the heavy problems of the country's prosperity without taking stock of the amount of material used in a woman's skirt. There have been inkings of this trouble all along, but the tight skirt has not heretofore been brought home to us as it were. In France the government pleaded with the makers of women's fashions to widen women's skirts so that the mills could run full time and give employment to thousands of unemployed.
Not until fashion was ready, however, did the ameliorating device come forth.
The tight skirt is doomed and the era of the full skirt is upon us. Prosperity will smile upon our broad backs and "hardile trade conditions caused by the tight skirt will no longer prevail." Thus, in the everlasting circle of things, is industrial salvation at hand.

War and Drink

Whatever else the war may or may not have accomplished, it has certainly thrown public opinion in one direction, and that is to the extenuation of the effect of the liquor traffic on the moral spirit of efficiency and morale. Russia was the first country to make the step, and rejecting the prohibition for the time of the war, striking at the root of the trouble, as he put it, has, contrary to the general expectation, not with a murmur approval from the general public and the Liberal and Unionist papers. The realization, by the people, of the menace to themselves that there is in the present drink situation in England has been brought forcibly to their notice, and they see that no matter how much one may argue about the freedom of the individual in regard to what he wants to do, when the nation stands in the position that she does today, any individual sacrifice is not too much when it will help the cause to a more speedy and successful issue.

The worker at home who is supplying the necessities for the conflict, is thus shown to be no less an asset to victory than the man in the trenches, and his energy and productivity must no less be of the finest quality possible. As much is required of him as of his neighbor, and he who is dependent upon him and who he falls behind in his work the risk of danger to the soldier and sailor is proportionately increased. In other words, the more the worker at home neglects his duty for the sake of drink, the chance of loss to the country through drink, and if the workman is not sufficiently strong to be able to master his own inclinations, if only for a time, then it is the duty of the British government towards the Empire to take the matter in hand, and impose what restrictions are necessary for the maintaining of the Nation and its defenders.—E.

We Things

The Grassy Lake Gazette of April 9th says in regard to the "prohibition campaign." Careful study of the bill on which the people of Alberta will vote next July compels us to oppose it. We do not consider that it is a bill that should be written into the statutes of this province. It is likely, if passed, to do more harm than good.
Experiences and investigation have evinced us that legislation is not the proper method for curing or preventing such evils as Intemperance drinking.
Only by education will true temperance be brought about. There is too much "Thou shalt not" already and not enough "should not."

The person who thinks that the arguments on this question of prohibition are all on the side of the so-called temperance party is badly mistaken. There is no justification for the assertion that it is wrong to take a drink of beer, whiskey or wine. Intemperance drinking is wrong just as intemperance is wrong. Since it is not wrong to drink in moderation there should be no law compelling a person to abstain from even moderate drinking.

The world is certainly improving by education and there is less drunkenness today than there was forty years ago.
Education can cure the evil more surely and surely in time in the United Kingdom and British possessions generally, or wherever the two cents rate applied, which is added to the regular postage stamp, carry a one cent stamp as a "War tax," and also having notified the public that such war tax, which it should be paid preferably by the postage stamp marked "War Tax," could, if such stamp were not available, be paid by an ordinary one cent postage stamp, is now issuing further notice to the effect that postage stamps may be used for the prepayment of war duties on bank cheques, bills of exchange, promissory notes, exchange money orders, proprietary or patent medicines, perfumery, wines or champagne, as well as upon letters and postcards, postal notes and post office money orders, also intention being to provide facilities in those portions of the country where excise stamps are not available.

In this view of the fact that postage stamps may be obtained at all points over the whole country, in places where there is no collector of inland Revenue and no inland Revenue stamps could be obtained, is a distinct consequence to the public and no doubt will be largely taken advantage of.

FOUNDED A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM I suffered with rheumatism for two years and could not get any right kind of relief for that length of time.
I wrote Mrs. L. Chapman, Manchester, Iowa, "I suffered terribly so I could not sleep or be still at all." Five years ago I began using Chapman's Kidney and Bladder Remedy and in two months I was well and have not suffered with rheumatism since.

The Difference

"When the Greater had made all the good things, there was still some dirty work to do. So He made the beast and regime and poisonous insects, and when He finished He had some scraps that were too bad to put into the rat-kennel, the hyena, the scorpion and the skunk, so He put all these together, covered it with suspicion, wrapped it with jealousy, marked it with a yellow streak and called it a KNOCKER."

"This product was so fearful to contemplate that He had to make something to counteract it, so He took a man and put it in the heart of a child, the brain of a man, wrapped these in civic pride, covered it with brotherly love, gave it a mask of velvet and a grasp of steel, and called it a BOOSTER; made him a lover of bells and flowers and manly sports, a believer in justice and justice, and ever since these two were, mortal man has had the privilege of choosing his associates."

Things That

Never Happen

Editor Bartlett of the Blairmore Enterprise, mounts to the extreme heights of sarcasm when under the heading of "Things That Never Happen," he writes: "Every business man in Blairmore is a man who is advertising in this Enterprise from the pages of this paper. Last year they paid full price for advertising each month, and presented the editor with a fat check for a Christmas and New Year's gift. All their job printing passed through the hands of the local printer, for which the latter was very thankful.
At the beginning of 1915 every subscriber came down to the editor's sanctum, to pay up a year's subscription in advance and incidentally to urge upon us a boost for local patronage, pledging themselves not to send a nickel to Tim Vinton or any other foreign establishment."
—Edgar Allan Poe.

to offer the world in the way of commodity or service."

First Payment Of Compensation

Arrangements have been made whereby the Montreal Collieries, Ltd., will pay over the first instalment of the compensation, resulting from the mine disaster of last spring, on June 1. The total amount of compensation payable close to the quarter million mark, and the amount paid in June will run into five figures.
Since the agreement was reached between the owners of the mine and the committee for the widows and orphans, the number of names on schedule "A," entitling full compensation of $1000 has been increased from 37 to 75, and it is believed full compensation will eventually be paid to over 90 families.—Leithbridge Herald.

A Piece of Phonetic Spelling

The Truro News says: "A little soldier is in a London hospital and a German bullet was found embedded in the musk-part of his bare. He walks a mile after he was wounded."

A Dog Team In Truro From Alaska

We neglected to mention before that a midget looking team arrived in Truro from Alaska on Saturday noon, the first lot.

This rig consisted of a miniature wagon drawn by three dogs in tandem. The driver was a middle aged man weighing some 160 lbs, and the dogs trotted along with wagon and man in good style.

The leader was a pure-bred husky, and was as savage as a snake. The sight of a strange dog, approaching this old looking rig, made him wild, and if he could have cleared his throat he would have made short work of anything in the dog line in Truro—even "Screach Owl" would have had to dance before such a blood-thirsty Alaskan hound.

The driver, who said he had driven from Truro, said that morning, has been months on the route from Alaska; and, dodging through many of the States of the adjoining Republic, had traveled some 25,000 miles.

If he arrived in Halifax by July 1 we understand that he gets a price of $6,000. The poor dogs looked tired, and whenever a bus made their way down on the ground and ready for a sleep.

As soon as this Alaskan make Halifer and get his money we hope the S. P. C. will stop this dog act and confiscate the whole truck. The husky we'd like to own long enough to start out against some of the worthless hounds in Truro, that have paid no dog-tax and are not worth their salt.—Truro News.

The Cosmopolitan Watchman

The last faint twinkle now goes out. Up in the hotel stair.

The hotel stairs are now silent, and the last of the night is over. Speed off with steps serene.

The roofs shone down the feathered snow. The vane creaks on the steeple; The street lights glow and glimmer low In the storm of the Blairmore's people.

The houses all stand dark and still. The lobbies and bars are deserted; A body may now wander about as he will, With his hand on his forehead, and his head in his hands.

No quivering eye now looks the way. No scoundrel's tongue is dimming; The heart that has slept the living day May leave and leave with trembling.

Dear Night, don't go to each back end; The good is blessing prove thee; They tell me thou art no man's friend; But O, Sweet Night, I love thee.

Wise Doctor Gave Good Hair-Growing Recipe

Philadelphia, April 7.—Interesting details of the ancient Moses law were detailed by Professor (sadden) M. Cohen of Albany college in a lecture here today on "Moses and His Times. Recent discoveries by archaeologists, he declared, have confirmed the biblical record of Moses."

"Many of the laws of Moses are copies of more ancient laws," said Dr. Cohen, "but the nucleus of his law was so valuable that round it have been built the laws of the civilized world today. One of the old Moses laws fixed the salary of a surgeon. If he succeeded in an operation he received a certain sum; if he failed his right arm was cut off."

Under the same law, the speaker said, a contractor was put to death in case a building he had constructed fell and killed some one, or if a burglary was committed in a town, the mayor and council were held responsible for it.

"Moses could have written his laws in any one of six languages," Dr. Cohen added. "The doctors of the day were as sure as we are that they wrote their prescriptions in an ancient tongue that nobody else could understand. I've seen prescriptions for making the hair grow. They were printed on papyrus and the fact that one was a good one was proved by a note written beside it in another hand: 'It does the work, too.'"

T. H. Duncan, proprietor of the Pasburg hotel, was in town on Monday.

LOOK TO YOUR PLUMBING

You know what happens in a house when the plumbing is in poor condition—everybody in the house is liable to contract typhoid or some other fever. The digestive organs perform the same functions in the human body as the plumbing does for the house, and they should be kept in first class condition all the time. It is well to have your digestion take Chamberlain's Tablets and you are certain to get quick relief. For sale by all dealers.
